Thunder in the Valley aftermath discussions

Mamila Lalla
Western Review

Some members of council are concerned about possible damage done to the Drayton Valley Municipal Airport after Thunder in the Valley event took place last month.

Council got a look at the before and after images of the airport at the government and priorities committee meeting on Sept. 30. "I feel like if the guidelines aren't respected then there needs to be compensation for that. I know there is a great benefit to having this event but every year there is a lot of damage. I don't see that changing here regardless of what we have been doing," said Coun. Debra Bossert.

Town staff members who were present at the government and priorities committee meeting as well said there was damage to the airport due to the rain that week-end and the equipment that was used. "It could rain, and it might not, but it could rain next three years in a row and to have this kind of damage year after year, it's a lot of damage," said Coun. Faylet Wheeler.

Bossert added that the facility where the annual event takes place is first and foremost an airport.

Assistant Town Manager Neesen said there was damage on the north section of the runway as well, which has to be repaired. He added that the Northern Thunder Classic Car Club had until Oct. 2 to repair the damage, after which time the town will go ahead with the repairs and bill the club.

Wheeler had heard of some concerns from a pilot after some of the equipment from the event was left at the airport after the event was over.

In reply, Naidoo said the car club is aware of the issue and knows that the Public Works department will have to move anything that's left behind after the event is over, should it happen again.

INTERNET OF THINGS
The Internet of things committee has been working on "the dashboard" for the Town of Drayton Valley.

The dashboard is a way to present open data to anyone including the public and figure out patterns or trends.

Assistant Town Manager Neesen Naidoo gave an example of how police stats can be dashboard and the RCMP would be able to figure out trends such as which areas have spending cars or which streets have higher crime rates than others.

Councillors and administration discussed various areas where the real-time data would be useful. Mayor Glenn McLean said some of the areas that he was interested in looking at were housing, unemployment rate and homelessness and poverty rate per capita.

Drayton Valley has new planning and development officer

Julianne Kilmann
Western Review

The Town of Drayton Valley welcomed Muhammad Shahid Mughal as the town's new Manager Planning and Development Officer on Sept. 24.

This new position was put in place to help with the town's municipal development plan and area structure plan.

"My job is to prepare both the long range planning and community planning. For example, municipal development plan, area structure plan, and then to look after the land use bylaw," Mughal said. "The other thing is I am to deal with developers and builders then they submit an application for development permits. It is focused on the need for comprehensive planning (which) requires the direction for future development or the future growth of this area."

According to Mughal, this new position gives him the opportunity not only to help the town become a better place for its residents but also to advance his career.

"I was looking for a challenging position where I can utilize my skills and expertise. I have extensive experience in planning and I have experience in both long-term planning and current planning," he said. "When I was reading the job description, I really liked it and I thought it was a position I wanted to go for. It is a challenging but rewarding position and I am quite excited to do something for the town and also for my career growth as well."

Drayton Valley has a lot of potential for growth and Mughal said he is determined to make it "a regional hub for recreation, tourism, commercial, and industrial."

"When I came here for my first visit, I was looking at community profile and I saw there are a lot of natural resources like oil, agriculture, and forestry. There is a lot of potential for future development," he said. "It is a beautiful, small community."

It is close to Edmonton and Calgary. Strategically, it is the best location to offer professional jobs and employment in the region. It attracts people from other towns, cities, and other provinces."

is most excited about is the development of the town's downtown area.

"At this moment, honestly, I am seeing a few things that are missing and we can fill the gap. For example, we see municipal development plan and I think we need to utilize it and do make it based on broad principals and objectives," he said. "I can see we can also have a plan for the downtown area because if you see downtown, it does not look like a downtown area. It has its own characteristics for recreation, culture, arts, and business. Those are the two projects I am excited about. And after that, we will have a land-use bylaw or zoning bylaw that we could go on details and see how we can implement land use policies and proposals."

Forming relationships with Drayton Valley residents is also one of the main things Mughal wants to focus on.

"An important thing for me is the people. Whatever we do, we do for the people," he said. "I also look forward to working with other departments, other organizations, and other community stakeholders."

Telus gives resident a glimpse into the future

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

Imagined grocery bags in your hands, evening home after a long day at work along with a trip to the super market and trying to find your keys. It's quite a hassle isn't it?

There might be a solution to it in the future with a facial recognition that will be used to unlock the door and let you in.

"The concept we have imagined is a facial recognition that scans your face, recognizes you as one of the people who lives in the house and automatically unlocks and opens the door for you," said Andy Fisher director of marketing for Telus.

Future Home powered by Telus FIBRE was in Drayton Valley recently giving a glimpse of what the future could hold with homes that are connected to high speed networks. Residents had the opportunity to tour the home from Sept. 25 to Sept. 28.

"One of the things we have been talking about, with Fibre in Drayton Valley is how it future proofs your home which is a little tough to visualize so the intent of the Future Home is to help visualize some of the future capabilities that could come to households in the future," said Baker.

Drayton Valley was the first stop in the tour of the Future Home that will be making its way to Edmonton, Vancouver, and other cities along with other places planned for the year.

Drayton Valley is a community that has a close relationship with and we have said we would like to try innovative things in and the Future Home is, I think, a good example of us bringing some innovative ways of thinking in Drayton Valley," he said.

Some of the technologies showcased were some of the most advanced home technology available today as well as provide a glimpse into the future.

Along with the facial recognition system that unlocks the door for people who live in the house, some other technology advancements on display were in the kitchen like bio-metric food scanners that might help you guide with healthier choices.

"You are able to set down a piece of fruit or a pack of noodles and have the nutritional content be automatically displayed to help guide your decision in healthy eating," he said.

Another technology in the kitchen was a gesture control concept that will let you look through a recipe when your hands are covered in flour because you are trying that new cake recipe. The hands-free concept means you will navigate through the recipe or a video without touching the screen.

There was an office exhibit on display along with a suite of the art TV.

"We have a 4K ultra high definition television so it's a state of the art Samsung Television that's going to display some ultra high definition content," he said.

Residents who took the tour also had a chance to enter a draw and win some prizes courtesy of Samsung.

Land Use Bylaw needs public input

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

A first draft of Land Use Bylaw is sitting on Brazeau County's website. Brazeau County council recently approved the release of the document for public input.

The draft brings together many changes said Marjorie Verhaeghe, Director of Planning & Development for Brazeau County.

"That first draft brings together about two years' worth of input from stakeholders, landowners, boards and council. And that was all vetted through staff for inclusion with our consultants and presented through our steering committee made up of people who usually have some form of a planning background," he explained.

There are about 500 changes to the existing bylaw that include the removal and additions of some land use districts and other revisions. With these changes some residents will be faced with district zoning change.

Brazeau County has sent letters to approximately 1,200 residents explaining current and proposed future zoning on privately owned lands.

There would be about 1,200 properties (with changes) for sure," said Verhaeghe.

The next step for the county is to get public feedback on the current Land Use Bylaw document.

"We are going to be asking specific stakeholders to be looking at specific items like hazard lands, how we deal with recreation and recreational vehicles, and home based businesses and things like that," said Verhaeghe.

There will also be a public survey on county website coming up in a couple of weeks.

Verhaeghe said the county is planning two open houses where the public will be invited to come, review the document and provide feedback.

"The county is looking at doing one of the open houses on the west side of the river on Oct. 13 and on Oct. 15 is the one on the east side. Both of those open houses will be at community halls in the evening hours for the public to attend."

The hope is to get the first draft in front of council for approval around November and a new bylaw in the New Year.

After the first reading of the bylaw, public will be given another opportunity to come forward and share comments and concerns before second and third readings take place.

Will increasing Alberta's minimum wage actually help the working poor?

It's motherhood and muffins to say those earning the least should make a little more. It's every politician's dream to summon Little John and Friar Tuck, throw on some tights and play Robin Hood for Alberta's less fortunate.

There's much political mileage to be made fighting for the so-called "little guy" and slaying the gluttons.

But before Albertans wrap themselves in a warm orange blanket of coziness and congratulations, know this: Alberta's elevated minimum wage will not make an iota of difference to those living in poverty.

In fact, it stands to make things worse. A total of 2.2% of Albertans work for the legislated bare minimum.

According to the government's own literature, more than half of those are aged 15-24. A full 35% of them are teenagers.

In other words, kids. A big chunk of the rest are either students or retirees.

More than 50% of those jobs are part time and nearly half of the people receiving minimum wage have been at their jobs less than a year. They haven't earned their raises yet. Soon, they either move on to better paying jobs or actually graduate from school.

The majority of the minimum wage jobs are either in hospitality or retail.

So, I would stand to reason employees in those fields will pass on the added cost of the new wages to their customers.

Everything from a hotel room to new shoes to chicken wings at your local pub will go up.

In some cases, businesses will cease to exist altogether, resulting in less jobs for those students and seniors.

As for the rare Albertans who make minimum wage long after school and before retiring, they too will pay more for their chicken wings.

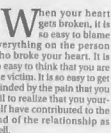

And more in taxes, to boot. The Canadian Federation of Independent Business says Alberta minimum wage earners could see their payroll deductions increase from $1,965.60 in 2010 to $5,576.22 in 2018 when the full $15/hr. minimum wage kicks in.

Albertans need to ask themselves, does this move do anything for our poor or does it add to their numbers?

As all these taxes were implemented, the cost of maintaining a civil society grew dramatically. We know there are as he was. I have replayed our conversations a thousand times and it is flitting clear to me that I, too, have done something that pushed him away.

Life lessons from a heartbreak

It was a hard pill to swallow and I was not ready for it. It took a lot of time trying to analyze what happened, a lot of conversations with family and friends to get different perspectives, and a lot of chocolate ice cream to make me feel better before I have decided to accept the fact that I am over. If there is anything I've learned from this, it is that it would continue to hurt until I finally move on. And moving on won't happen unless I let go. But I won't be able to let go until I learn to forgive both myself and him. And that forgiveness will follow only after I have fully accepted in my heart that it is over.

At the end of every relationship, there will always be regrets and a lot of "I wish I did this instead of that" but at the end of the day, what is done is done. You have to feel secure with the fact that you did what you could or did what you think was right at that moment. It is sad that there is no restart button in life but you have to stop torturing yourself by thinking of the what should have been, and what would have been, and think the most important thing when trying to move on is to forgive yourself and the other person for everything that both of you have done or have not done. As they say, not all relationships are meant to last but all relationships are meant to teach you a lesson. And for the person who broke my heart, thank you and I am sorry.

Letter to the editor

My letter to Rachel Notley

I really never imagined that the day would come when I would write a letter to anyone in government; however, it appears that day has arrived. I am 54 years old and have been in this beautiful province of Alberta using my privilege to vote each and every single time the opportunity arose. I did not vote for you or your party, but did and do understand that this is how democracy works. I was disappointed, but I decided to give you the opportunity to prove that you were the right person to lead Alberta.

I don't even know where to begin identifying the areas you have failed as a leader & moreover, failed miserably as an Albertan. You have dismissed the very people that you work for as insignificant and will say whatever needs to be said to push your ideological mandate through regardless if it is based on truth.

First, you lived rent-free out of province people to speak on behalf of the very industry they are against? How can that be a "balanced and objective" approach. I am very certain you could find very qualified and knowledgeable people right here within Alberta that actually had first hand knowledge of the oil industry and how it is run. Then, your intention on TV that we use "the embarrassing counts that no one wants to talk about." You state we have the worst environmental record. Really, please provide the facts to these accusations you are throwing out there. It is interesting that I can only find positive documents to support that Alberta is a leader, compared to other countries. The U.S. has the most climate record, however, I doubt you and Hilary Clinton took the time to mention that in the media, as we are more than happy to throw Alberta under the bus. You say that this is how the world views us, but I beg to differ that may be how your boss Mulcaire and some folks back East see us, but it is far from the truth. I am ashamed that you are the person who is representing us on the world front, as I fear you will effectively kill our province based on untrue.

I do not blame the NDP for the price of oil, but I sure blame you for not being the leader we need and supporting hard working Albertans during this economic downturn. You three "oil on the bar" every time you speak or the rare times them you state more money from us without explaining why. You do know that a good majority of us realize that you will not release that budget as Mulcaire feels it may hurt his chances. We Albertans are pretty smart-not just a bunch of rednecks that you like to portray us as. I have never, in my life, been as angry with a premier (I thought Redford topped the list, but at least she never sold us down the provincial river) or a party in my life. If this has taught me anything, it is that socialism like to talk about care and concern for people and environment, but in the end you will spend our tax dollars to benefit your own party and mandate. I would prefer the thieves we had before, at least there were still jobs then and they weren't trashing our province and one of our respected industries. You and your party are a double edged sword as you will single-handedly promote the demise of this beloved province. Shame on you.

Photo radar, school fees, and paying for a civil society

Several years ago, a couple of online articles appeared which stated that one of the most famous one-liners about taxes was uttered by Oliver Wendell Holmes, the guy who said, "These are the price we pay for a civil society."

Holmes was a judge appointed to the U.S. Supreme Court in 1902. Back then, Tax Freedom Day fell on January 21st. The tax bill paid to all levels of government added up to 5.6% of the average person's annual earnings. (Canada's tax rates were similarly low.) This was thought to be the price of a civil society.

The permanent U.S. income tax was established in 1913. Canada's national income tax, which was supposed to be a temporary war tax, arrived four years later. Originally, the U.S. base rate was 1% on income above $3,000. Canada's base rate was 4%, with differing exemption levels depending upon marital status.

Revenue add-ons can include many things. As governments take on a bigger appetite for revenue, individuals and families are hit with increasing taxes, followed by an array of user-fee and add-ons.

point where the town's residents drop off. Locals and "pinched" motorists are openly wondering if the objective is traffic safety or grid maling.

Most people believe education and justice should come at no charge in a civil society. Yet this year, Albertans face escalating user-fee for schools, justice, and registry requirements.

School boards will collect almost $200 million in user-fee. And in court, it now costs $50 just to file a statement of defence, $600 to set a matter for trial, and up to $250 a day in court-room fees. Alberta's registry fees are also climbing.

British Columbia has 4.63 million people. Alberta has 4.2 million people. Yet B.C.'s budget is $45.8 billion with a deficit of $9.1 billion. Can anyone credibly argue that Alberta is more civil than B.C., simply because we spend so much more?

Hardly. It's true that taxes are the price we pay for a civil society. It's also true that government overspending doesn't purchase additional civility. Instead, it eats at the financial resources that rightfully belong not to the government of Alberta, but to individual Albertans and to their families. Kitchen Table Talk is a forum consisting of a small group of Official Opposition MLAs, who each week get together to talk through a legislative policy issue. As part of the process, a short commentary is compiled and then edited.

Green Party looking to win Yellowhead riding

Gord Fortin
Postmedia Network

The Green Party is not overlooking the Yellowhead riding as candidate Sandra Wolf Lange hopes to be the riding's first Green MP.

Originally from Brazil, Wolf Lange was always been a political person and the environment was always something she was passionate about. Her interest in politics started at age 13. She said she was born into an environmentally conscious family.

Her political time was spent involved in green politics since her time in Brazil as well as Germany, where she met her husband. She feels this is the right time for her to run.

She explained she chose the Green Party because the party has a value of life that other parties do not have in her opinion.

She expanded on that by saying she will not sell out values for power, money or other positions as other parties have in her eyes.

The Green Party is the only party that is compassionate towards people, she said.

She hopes people will come out and vote in this election. She feels there is a sense of apathy in the populace but hopes her campaign encourages people to vote.

"I think it's very sad that, especially in our riding, that when I talk to people they tell me they are not going to vote," she said.

As for the issues in this election, she said she would like to push for a proportional representation election system to replace the current first past the post system.

She feels the change needs to be made because some voters do not feel their votes count with the current system. She added this is something the party believes in.

She explained that should she be elected as the MP for Yellowhead, she will bring her heart, experience and compassion to the House of Commons.

"I do care for people," she said.

She said she will take the constituents' issues to heart and be close to the community. She does not see herself having to answer to any type of higher government power or her party. Her main focus is the people in the riding.

"I don't have an agenda for myself," she explains. "I follow the needs of the constituents of Yellowhead."

To address critics that say the Green Party is a one issue party, she said that is wrong and those critics need to do their research into the truth. The party has a full platform on their website www.greenparty.ca. She said the platform covers a wide array of issues people are concerned about.

"You can see it ranges from the economy, justice, democracy and the environment too," she pointed out.

She said if anyone has questions, her contact information is available online. Her Twitter is @sarahmaxima and Facebook page is Sandra Wolf Lange for Yellowhead.

Citizen budget phase two now available to Brazeau County residents

Justine Kinoshen
Western Review

Brazeau County residents can have a say on how the county can use the 2016 county budget through the citizen budget.

Phase one of the citizen budget is over and phase two is now available for residents until Oct. 16.

"Citizen budget is an online budget tool for citizens," said Brazeau County Corporate Communications Coordinator Katie Robertson. "Basically, (on phase two) residents have the opportunity to log on and try to balance the county budget. They can sort of play around and allocate so many dollars to one department and so many dollars to another department so making a real life implication of what it would be if you were to add money to say corporate services and take it away from community services."

According to a press release by the county, phase two of the citizen budget is a more in-depth survey.

"Phase one was more of an open-ended question so (residents) were able to assign whether or not they saw the value in the department," said Robertson. "This (time, it) is actual dollars and cents so they are responsible for creating a virtual budget."

Robertson encourages Brazeau County residents to answer the survey by visiting www.brazeaucounty.citizen-budget.com. "It is important because it gives council and administration insight into the current climate of residents who are living in the county and what types of services that they want to see offered to them," she said. "Based on that, a report will be generated from the information gathered. It will be provided to council and administration to take into consideration for the 2016 budget."

The Drayton Valley and District Family and Community Support Services (FCSS) is organizing a Community Shred It event on Oct. 14 at the Drayton Valley Omniplex parking lot from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

"The Community Shred It event is an opportunity for our community members and non-profit groups to take their personal, private, and confidential papers to a shred it truck to have them shred it for free," said FCSS program assistant Jennifer Pynn. "We try to have this event every year. It has been successful and we've always had a lot of community members attend all the shredding events."

Pynn encourages people in the community to come out to the event and discard their unwanted personal documents in a safe manner.

"It is important that we get rid of our important documents in a safe way to protect ourselves from identity theft," she said. "There is going to be a huge truck there and it will be barricaded off so people will be able to see where to go. They can bring in their papers and there will be a person there assisting them to shred it for them."

Alberta Transportation seeks feedback on bridge and highway construction projects

Justine Kimoden
Western Review

Brazeau County residents are encouraged to answer the 2015 Alberta Transportation Project Satisfaction Survey available at the county's website.

Through the survey, Alberta Transportation will gain feedback from highway and bridge construction projects completed in the past months. This includes the bridge replacement and highway reassignment project south of Drayton Valley. The bridge construction project began in 2010.

"The survey provides an opportunity for the public and Alberta Transportation's stakeholders to give feedback after the completion of some major projects across the province," said Alberta Transportation spokesperson Carrie Sancarlier. "We will collect this input to help shape the delivery of future projects, with the intent to improve our results and overall satisfaction in the future." The survey will take about five minutes to complete.

The survey includes 10 to 12 questions and asks participants to choose a construction project and provide feedback on the construction. Sancarlier said, "It provides a way for Albertans to connect with the department and provide feedback on 17 construction projects across the province."

Anyone interested in answering the survey can do so by visiting brazeau.ab.ca.

The survey is expected to close before Christmas. Once closed, Alberta Transportation will review the results and determine what areas of our project delivery could be improved. "The survey is entirely voluntary but we appreciate any feedback through it."

Time to Move workshop held

Western Review

A workshop was held at the Drayton Valley Primary Care Network on Sept. 28 to educate workshop participants about the importance of exercise.

Client Health Educator and Exercise Specialist for Alberta Health Services (AHS) Renee Nuttall was the facilitator for the Time to Move workshop.

"Time to Move is a 90-minute presentation done through the Alberta Healthy Living Program through AHS and it's a workshop on why it is so good for you to move and the challenges of why we don't," she said. "It was a partnership between Primary Care Network and AHS. Between the two of us, we generated the clientele that showed up."

Workshop participants learned about different types of exercise programs and how to do it properly.

"Hopefully, they learnt what is a well-rounded exercise program and the components they need," Nuttall said. "We talked about cardiovascular fitness, resistance training, the importance of eating balance and flexibility. They also learnt what is important for a good exercise program. It needs to be safe, it needs to be convenient, it needs to be enjoyable, and it needs to be consistent."

Time to Move is one of the many workshops offered through the Alberta Healthy Living Program. Most of the other workshops through the program run for weeks.

"We have a lot of series classes but this is just a little 90-minute workshop that stands on its own to generate interest and give people information, and hopefully direct them to the longer running programs that we offer," Nuttall said.

Some of the other workshops or classes offered through the program are Craving Change, Heart Wise, and Better Choices, Better Health.

"We have Better Choices, Better Health which is a self-management program for anyone that has a chronic disease and that is run over six weeks. We have Craving Change which is a three series workshop and it is all about changing your relationship with food," said Nuttall.

We have Diabetes Basics which is a six-hour class and it is for anyone who has diabetes, prediabetic, or supporting someone who is diabetic. Then we have a Heart Wise class which is three hours and it is for eating and living for a healthy heart. Half is taught by a dietitian and the other half taught by an educator through AHS. We have Weight Wise workshops and those are offered fairly consistently in Drayton Valley. There are 10 sessions in total in this series, and it is for anybody looking for weight management strategies led by a dietitian so very food specific diets and the rest are around hunger and appetite and why moving is so important and also two sessions on stress management. The last one that I will mention is supervised exercise which is a two month commitment and it teaches people over those two months the knowledge, the skills, and the confidence to exercise safely with their chronic condition."

Anyone interested in participating in any of the workshops and classes can contact 1-877-314-6997.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

OCTOBER 4-10

Fire prevention month is here

Western Review

The annual Fire Prevention month is upon us, hosted by the Drayton Valley/Brazeau County Fire Services.

Like every year the fire department is hosting various events and activities to engage the community.

Fire Prevention Month kicked off at the Canadian fire parking lot in Drayton Valley with a community barbecue on Oct. 3. There were hot dogs and hamburgers as well as goodies and activities for the children.

A pizza delivery/smoke detector program is on Oct. 7 in cooperation with Boston

Pizza. The fire department will once again be delivering pizzas to residents in Drayton Valley. While delivering, they will check smoke detectors for residents and if they are working, residents will be paying half price for the pizzas.

Chimney sweep inspection and cleaning program is back as well with residents in Drayton Valley and Brazeau County getting their fire places and chimneys inspected and cleaned.

Fire department will host open houses at the Breton station on Oct. 7, Lodgepole station on Oct. 14 and Drayton Valley on Oct. 21. All three open houses will be in the evening hours inviting the community to join in for the barbecue and activities.

As part of their ongoing fire prevention campaign, the fire department will be working with Drayton Valley Thunder to bring awareness of having smoke alarms at homes.

The department will also be getting busy with high school students to initiate a distracted testing program. The program will discuss dangers of being distracted while using cell phones and offered at Holy Trinity Academy, Frank Maddock High School and Breton High School.

There are various other programs taking place for the fire prevention month.

Parent Council News & Notes

St. Anthony School Next year's Cards will once again be available soon! On the back of every card you will find exclusively negotiated discounts within Drayton Valley and online. Each card sells for $20. With discounts potentially valued at well over the $20 donation simply using the card 1 or 2 times will save each card holder a great deal of money over the year. Parent Council's next meeting is October 19th @ 7:00, babysitting will be provided.

We would like to encourage parents to pay their fees online. Please visit our website <http://starcatholic.schoolsaskonline.com/>. It's simple! Just follow the 4 easy steps to make payments. Then see your payment history and receive receipts via email.

Important Reminders
Microwaves will be available for those students in grades six and eight. We would like to take this time to remind parents/guardians that there will be NO microwaves in the classrooms for grades Kindergarten - 5. Parents/Guardians please make sure ALL your child/children's clothing and shoes are labeled. That way if they are left outside or in the school somewhere, they can be returned to the rightful owner.

Please ensure that you use the crosswalk when you drop off your children. We want our students to be safe at all times. There is a Handicapped parking spot on the South side of the school in the front of the school. It is marked with blue paint. Please make sure that you are not parked in this spot, as this spot needs to be available for those whom require it.

Please pull into a parking spot (where there is NO yellow paint) when dropping off or picking up students in the back or front parking lots of the school.

Office hours are 8:00-4:00. Parents please make sure you call the office or email ric.lemeroy@starcatholic.ab.ca if your child will be late or absent. If you have reached the answering machine please leave a message as staff are unavailable to answer the phone.

TOMAHAWK

Our focus is to provide each child with new challenges that will result in a rewarding school experience. We want your child to be happy and successful at Tomahawk School, and you play a key role. That role is to continually show interest in, and to support, your child. A child who knows his or her family is interested in and supports school programs and staff, will almost always enjoy greater success, and will have fewer difficulties in school. Tomahawk School is a place where students can feel at home and are supported and encouraged to grow in all areas - academically, socially and emotionally.

Place up those sneakers as the cross-country running club will start practicing soon during noon breaks. Races begin at 4:00pm and own transportation is needed. There is an entry fee (approximately $5.00/race) and is payable at each location.

Cross-country meets scheduled include: October 6 Tomahawk School running coach for further information if needed. Please call Ms. Gallant (running coach) for further information. Students in grades 4-9 require gym strip for physical education. This includes shorts and/or sweat pants, and a change of shirt. All students require clean gym shoes (with non-marking soles) to be worn in the gymnasium. Specific activities such as skating and cross-country skiing would require special clothing that would be requested by the physical education teacher as necessary.

Thank you to everyone who took part in the Terry Fox run September 19th. We continue to raise funds for this worthwhile cause until the end of September. School photographs are scheduled for Tuesday, October 6 first thing in the morning. Bring your biggest smiles for individual photos. This year Tomahawk School has employed the photography services of Lifetouch National School Studios. Students are reminded to not wear green clothing as it blends in with the green screen.

Still have a few spots left! Tomahawk School is offering an Early Education Program and has space available for children who will be 3 years and 6 months by September 2015.

Mrs. Van Ember will be teaching this program. Call Mrs. Nicholson or Mrs. Gruber at 780-339-3935 if you require further information.

Tomahawk School is selling Hockey Hokey tickets, again, for only $20.00 to all students in Grades K through 9 until October 2nd. The Old Kings game we will see is on February 28th at 11:30am at Rexall Place. These tickets would make great Christmas gifts or stocking stuffers!

We know parents have received a "paper tornado" of forms to sign. We appreciate the time and dedication it takes to fill out these forms and return them promptly. This paperwork helps us to ensure that your child or children's needs are attended to and that we maintain open lines of communication. We truly appreciate your support. As always, if you have any questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to call.

In Loving Memory

Time does not heal the heartache, or stop a silent tear, Nor take away the longing, of one we loved so dear.

Our lives go on without you but things are not the same, It's hard to hide the heartache when someone speaks your name.

We think about you every day and talk about you too, We have such precious memories but we wish we still had you.

SUDOKU

Here's How it Works

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
